Calgary Power Co. Provides Assistance For Dam Erection

The Coleman Fish and Game Association have received a substantial cheque from the Calgary Power Co. to help defray costs of the dam to be erected on Ellison Creek.

As members of the association have pointed out it is quite possible that many residents of Coleman do not realize that within a very few miles of town there exists a location that can be developed into a fishing site unexcelled in the entire province. This has been a known fact, both to the game branch and to local Isaac Waltons for years, but every effort to develop the project has met with seemingly insurmountable obstacles. This site is only four miles north of the main highway on the Ellison Creek, and known locally for years as McLaren's Dam.

The most depressing aspect from the fishermen's point of view is that McLaren's Dam no longer exists. Some years ago, for reasons and by persons unknown, the dam was demolished, thereby ruining some of the finest fishing known in the district.

The objective of the Coleman Fish and Game Association is to have this dam reconstructed this fall, in readiness for a heavy stocking program planned by the provincial game department next spring.

The association made a new survey this summer on this project, and the same problems as in the past threatened failure again. An appeal to the Calgary Power Co. bore fruit in the form of financial assistance.

Negotiations are under way to secure the necessary heavy equipment required and timber for the spillway has been secured. A great deal of volunteer labor will be necessary and it is hoped that anyone called to help will answer the call. The Association is confident that with persistent efforts and the support of the public, fishing in this district can be brought back to high standards the old-timers reminisce about.

New Uniforms For Firefighters Coleman Brigade

Coleman volunteer fire brigade members will be the centre of attraction this week when the firefighters don their new uniforms and caps.

The jackets and trousers, a navy blue in color, are being purchased by the 15 members of the brigade at their own personal expense while the town is sponsoring the uniform caps for the brigade. The uniforms will be used for parades, Fire Prevention Week, while the brigade members are making their annual inspection and for other purposes.

Fire Chief John Kinnear has announced the annual Fireman's Ball will be held in the Elks Hall the evening of October 14. There will be a special door prize as well as a prize for story dancing.

Members of the brigade report that sales of tickets to the ball so far are very poor. Funds derived from the dance are used by the brigade for extra promotional activities such as the poster and essay contest held for the Coleman school students each year, for the purchase of trophies for the hose coupling competitions, and for catering to members of visiting fire brigades.

Former Bellevue Man Dies at 42 Years

Funeral services were held Friday in Calgary for a native of Bellevue, Bernard Brooks, 42, of Calgary.

Among survivors are a sister, Mrs. Isadore Robinson, and a brother, John, both of Bellevue. Burial was in the field of honor Burnside cemetery in Calgary.

What's this fisherman Fisher has caught. Considering that he is regarded as "Mr. Canada", it might be reasonable to expect that he would land, in one catch, a salmon from Canada's west coast and a lobster from the Maritimes. John Fisher is heard every week over the C.B.C. Trans-Canada Network and is renowned for his broadcasts on the various aspects of Canadian life.

COLEMAN RESIDENTS ANGERED OVER DELAY IN PROVIDING NEW POSTAL BUILDING—old one described as "Shambles"

Coleman residents are complaining about the condition of the Coleman post office building which many describe as a "shambles".

The office, located in the heart of the business section, is a frame building which has serviced a population of approximately 3,000 to 4,000 persons for well over 20 years. Many here feel that if the structure were not used for postal services the authorities would probably have condemned the structure many years ago.

Town business men feel that with the volume of business that a more adequate building should be provided. The interior is dark and storing and shelving space is very limited and the staff has had to contend with difficult conditions for many years.

In 1939 Coleman was slated to have a new post office building but it was dropped through some unknown reason and again during the past few years it seemed a new post office was going to be built as the federal government had allotted $100,000 for the structure. Again the matter was side-tracked and Coleman citizens are critical of the delay as is the Board of Tr. de.

Remembrance Day Committee Appointed by Can. Legion

Chairman of the Wreath and Poppy committee will be Mr. Fred Beddington, ably assisted by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

Legion Invites Local Citizens To Lay Wreaths

Cheering Reports Heard At United Church Meet

The South Alberta Presbytery of the United Church of Canada met in Blairmore on Tuesday and Wednesday in the local United Church with 51 ministerial and non-ministerial delegates in attendance from as far east as Empress and Medicine Hat and as far north as Brooks. The presbytery, under the chairmanship of Fred Holberton of Lethbridge, dealt with a full agenda embracing all phases of the life of the United Church in Southern Alberta.

Sessions opened with devotions led by the Rev. D. S. Brooker of Bow Island in the morning and the Rev. R. McAuley of Coleman in the afternoon on Tuesday.

Reports of a fine summer camp at the Waterton Park were received at the Tuesday morning sessions, as well as a report on the United Church Training School in Toronto, the Church's school for young women entering full time work in the church. This school held its Golden Jubilee last year and celebrated this occasion with the opening of a new residence for the housing of 58 students and the instituting of a course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Religious Education. Among students from all across Canada it was interesting to note that there was one from the Southern Alberta presbytery, Miss Lily Chin of Hillcrest.

Widen Area Iron Permit

West Canadian Collieries has been granted an amendment to its iron prospecting permit, allowing the firm to extend operations over 80,168 acres of land in Southern Alberta. This adds lands to the previous permit.

A notice in the latest Alberta Gazette said the amendment was made to a permit issued to the firm on Feb. 28 of this year.

One parcel of land lies in the foothills and mountains of southwestern Alberta. The remainder is in the southeastern portion of the province in the vicinity of the Cypress and Sweetgrass hills.

The firm was required to make a payment of $250 for the amendment, and deposit an additional $1,500 with the minister of mines and minerals.

How To Save Your Family From Fire

1—Get everyone out of the house the minute you discover a fire.

2—Don't fling doors open if you think there's a fire — feel them first and if they're hot, set out another way or block the doors with furniture or dampened mattresses to keep out the smoke and gases.

3—If you have to pass through smoke or heat, crouch down and hold a wet handkerchief over your nose and mouth.

4—Avoid panic, keep cool, don't jump from upper story windows except as a last resort. Wait for the firemen — a closed door will hold back fire.

5—Don't go back into a burning building for any reason other than to save a life—and remember that smoke and fire gases can be deadly.

6—Unless it's a small fire and you're certain you can control it with the right extinguisher, don't waste your time or your life by trying to fight a fire—get away from it and call the fire department at once—they know how to fight it.

7—Plan with your family what to do in case of a fire — plan a use an alternate escape route away from the fire.

8—If you are burned or exposed to fire and smoke, get medical treatment at once.

Forestry Official Given Transfer

BLAIRMORE — It was learned this week that Norman Lind, forest superintendent of the Crow's Nest Forest Reserve of Blairmore, has been transferred to Rocky Mountain House. It is not yet known who will replace Mr. Lind.

Coming to Blairmore in June, 1949, Mr. Lind has taken an active part in community affairs being librarian of the Crow's Nest Pass Film Council for a number of years and the present treasurer of the Blairmore Board of Trade. He was also a member of the Blairmore Lions club.

He will move to his new location on November 1 and Mrs. Lind and daughter Karen will follow at a later date.

Elks Bingo Raises Money For Operation Fund

The sale of extra bingo cards at the Elks Bingo held last Friday evening netted the sum of $48.75 all of which was turned over to the Spencer Dunford Operation Fund being sponsored by the Coleman Legion.

Mr. Bond spoke on behalf of this fund and stated that this fund requires the support of all, and asked anyone who had not contributed to it, to do so in the near future. He called upon Mr. R. Crippen of the Legion executive, to accept this contribution from the Elks. Mr. Crippen, in accepting, expressed the sincere appreciation extended by the Legion to the Elks and all in the hall for their kind support and stated that this contribution would give the fund a great boost. The fund was coming along swell, but more money was required to reach the desired amount needed to help defray the high cost of this operation.

Mr. Bond called upon little Spencer Dunford to stand and show himself to his many friends and well-wishers.

Winners in this bingo had the pleasure of taking home turkeys for their Thanksgiving dinners—12 turkeys in all, and as Mr. Bond stated they were all dead. "Dead Turkey Bond" was very lucky at the time that these turkeys were dead because the way he treated some of his players on those numbers was enough to get even the turkeys playing bingo for dead bingo callers.

Winners were: Steve Laskas, F. Puchala, Frank A. Tappano, Steve Kryczew, Cynthia Bond (daughter of Dead Turkey), John Proc, Buddy Clarke, T. Kimoto, Mrs. LeCroix, Mrs. W. Kubica, Mrs. A. Montabetti, Mrs. Pauline Vasek.

Jackpot consolation Mrs. A. Lorenz of Sentinel.

Turkey consolation winner, H. Hyack: of the Lime Works.

Sorry, Bert, I did not get up to eat the neck of that turkey that you promised me.

Call The Fire Department

1—Don't hesitate to call for an investigation by the fire department: at once if you smell or even suspect a fire.

2—In a fire minutes saved mean lives saved.

3—Many times fires gain headway because each person assumes someone else has called the fire department.

4—Find out today the quickest way to bring the fire department to your home by night or by day.

5—In the city go to the nearest fire alarm box, phone fire department, call number and be able to describe accurately the location of the fire.

6—In town or village telephone fire number or call operator or pull fire switch at the fire hall.

7—In the country get help from neighbors and the closest fire department and prepare a water supply.

Egg quality can be controlled

Egg quality can be controlled by following a few simple rules of management.

1. House only pullets which are healthy and in good condition. Housing time is a good time to cull and cull hard. Healthy, vigorous birds are an asset—not a liability.

2. Feed a balanced ration. This is a very important factor in the control of egg quality. Remember that pullets are potential egg machines and no machine will operate efficiently on low grade feed.

3. Provide plenty of clean water. Not only does water constitute approximately 56 percent of a chicken's body weight and 66 percent of the egg but it ranks far above any other substance as regards rate of turnover in the body. A plentiful supply of good water is a must in the production of quality eggs.

4. Once the pullets are housed in the fall, before they have reached 25 percent production, they should be kept confined. Confinement to the house aids in the control of disease and is an important factor in the production of high quality eggs. Approximately three to three and one half square feet of floor space should be allowed for each pullet.

5. Keep all equipment clean. Water fountains or pails should be washed daily; feeders, etc., as needed.

6. Gather eggs often and store in a cool place. Quality in eggs demands that they be gathered at least three times daily and cooled as rapidly as possible.

Strict adherence to a few fundamental rules of management will greatly improve the quality of eggs produced on the average farm.

In the preliminary judging of Manitoba entries, the best essay will be awarded $25.00 by the N.C.W.C. Second and third prizes of $15.00 and $10.00 respectively will be awarded by the National Grain Company Limited of Winnipeg.

World demand for newsprint still climbing

World demand for newsprint, steadily increasing since the Second World War, is expected to continue to outpace production for many years to come, a Canadian Press story reports.

"World production of newsprint is half as high again as it was in the years before the war," reports the Financial Times, "yet a worldwide shortage of newsprint persists."

The newspaper gives three reasons:

1. Destruction of capacity during the war, and the effects of the war in retarding the installation of new capacity. "Thus although Canadian output was considerably higher in 1945 than in 1939, total world production dropped by more than 30 percent."

2. The growth of demand has been magnified by the "steady progress of the world economy since the war."

3. The high cost of newsprint machinery has caused manufacturers to lag "somewhat behind" the growth in demand.

In its survey, the Financial Times says the overall increase in newsprint production since 1939 has been concentrated in a few producing countries—notably Canada, producing almost three-quarters of the total output, the United States and the Scandinavian countries.

Consumption in North America is rising faster than production, says the Financial Times. Looking ahead, the newspaper sees a mounting demand for newsprint throughout the world.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The man who, having turned 40 years of age, considers he is in perfect health would be well advised to make sure that his opinion is shared by his doctor. After that age, it may be necessary to throw down any very strenuous exercise or athletics, not because of any present impairment in health, but to ensure that he isn't overdoing things that might lessen his physical condition.

Sask. publisher named president Canadian weeklies

John A. Vopni, publisher of The Davidson Leader, Davidson, Sask., was elected president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association on September 14, during their annual convention in Vancouver, B.C.

John Vopni is a smalltown publisher who loves being called a "local yokel".

When city folks call John and his fellow weekly editors country hicks, he figures that just about as fine a compliment a weekly newspaperman could ask for.

Big John has a firm faith in the intimate, friendly influence of Canada's weekly press. He's a big man—big in stature, big in his ideas and big in actions.

In addition to serving as C.W.N.A.'s top officer, Big John is secretary-manager of the Saskatchewan Weekly Newspapers Association, one of the national groups most active provincial divisions.

His outstanding efforts on behalf of Saskatchewan weeklies have won him widespread recognition as a man with tremendous capacity for work. Just last month at the Saskatchewan group's convention it was revealed that his persistent efforts had resulted in well over $50,000 of special advertising in Golden Jubilee editions of Saskatchewan weeklies.

Born in Winnipeg in 1898, the eldest of six boys, John apprenticed to the printing trade with Logberg, an Icelandic webster. His enthusiasm for printing led four of his brothers to the trade.

When he was 22 he started his own printing business in Winnipeg—a venture he carried on for 10 years. But the yen to run his own newspaper prompted him to buy The Davidson (Sask.) Leader in 1931.

The depression years were tough with few subscribers able to pay for the paper in anything other than farm produce. But under John's editorship The Leader progressed steadily and now has a healthy ABC net paid of just over 1,000.

Smalltown newspapering and community work seem to go hand in hand for C.W.N.A.'s president. Following many years' service as a town councillor he was Davidson's mayor for 16 years. Similarly he was local board of trade secretary for several terms and then president. A past chairman of the Davidson Hospital Board, he is now secretary-manager of the institution and "up to his ears" in planning a new hospital building.

It just seemed natural for Mr. Vopni to get deeply involved when Saskatchewan started to prepare for its Golden Jubilee. He is a di-

Man's animals, like man, show tendency live longer

Man's animals, like man himself, show a decided tendency to live longer and grow larger. Dogs, for one, enjoy greater life expectancy. A dog's life two decades ago averaged out at seven or eight years. Now, though there are no vital statistics on pets, authorities say the average dog lives 11 to 13 years, thanks to better foods and veterinary care.

Scientific breeding and feeding show even more striking results on the farm. The National Geographic society says. Beef cattle are better, milk cows milker. Young pigs and chickens grow faster. The entire barnyard stays healthier, boosting longevity.

In only a few cases, and then only very gradually, does a breed as a whole seem to be getting bigger. Thoroughbred horses 200 years ago averaged 14 hands high. Today that same height would officially class the horse as a pony; standard race horse height is 15½ hands, a growth of six inches.

Whether dogs as a canine family are growing gradually larger as one pet-food firm recently surmised, is doubtful. Selection of mates, environment—even dog shows—can work great changes in a given breed. Popularity of various breeds fluctuates, changing the overall dog population. But the ancient wolflike wild dogs that fathered man's first domesticated animal were quite close in size to dogs of today.

Horses differ. Horses are a different story. Eohippus, the Dawn horse, grew some 45,000,000 years ago scarcely larger than a big tomcat. Its city descendants stood about the size of a fox terrier.

Even the last "prehistoric" horse, the not-quite-extinct wild Przewalski's horse of Asia's steppes, is only four feet high, pony size.

It is possible to breed horses—or cattle, hogs or dogs for that matter—downward in size until dwarf animals appear. This is done sometimes for showhorses, sometimes for serious breeding purposes. Small-sized turkeys for small families are increasingly popular, as are hackney ponies for horse shows.

On the other hand, Shetland ponies, shaggy midgets because of long centuries on sparse, cold island pastures north of Scotland, tend to grow larger generation by generation when transported to greener fields.

Neither dogs nor cats, no matter how they thrive on today's growth feeds, serums, and wonder medicines, are apt to become giants or to match man in longevity.

Dogs rarely live beyond 20

Pillowed and hushed on the silent plain.

Wrapped in her mantle of golden grain.

Wearied of pleasuring weeks away.

Summer is lying asleep today.

The north wind kisses her rosy mouth.

His rival frolics in the far-off south.

And comes caressing her sunburnt cheeks.

And summer awakes for one short week—

Awakes and gathers her wealth of grain.

Then sleeps and dreams for a year again.

Cat longevity in modern times doubtless is higher than in the superstitious-ridden Dark Ages, when cats were dropped from the highest towers of Flemish towns on the second Wednesday of Lent, were roasted alive in cages beside roaring fires in Scotland, and roasted on spits in Scotland—all to do away with the spirits of witchcraft.

Start football training now

Paul Brown, coach of the mighty Cleveland Browns, National Football League Champions, was asked to name the most important fundamental in football.

"In many ways," he answered, "Leg drive is the most important. It's certainly a 'must' as far as I'm concerned."

Here's a tip from football's top coach that every player should give number one priority for the coming season. Now's the time to start developing leg drive—not in midseason when you should be polishing the things that leg drive will make work more effectively for you.

Everyone can develop drive by working at it—perhaps not to the same degree, but certainly to a much higher point than it is at now. And it helps you hit harder, break tackles easier, and make better, more devastating tackles and blocks.

Many players lack drive, it has been found, simply because they fail to make a conscious effort to run hard and with drive. They have to get the habit. Leg drive consists of driving the foot hard into the ground and then consciously pushing the foot hard against the ground in an effort to gain propulsion during the running action.

Here's an effective drill that helps teach leg drive. First, the athlete runs normally for 25 yards. Then he repeats the run, consciously trying to use as much leg drive as he can—really driving his foot into the ground and then shoving off hard.

This driving type of running will seem awkward at first. But it will disappear with continued drilling as the athlete's muscles get used to the action. So will the feelings of fatigue that usually accompany the use of such extra muscle power and effort.

Two things the athlete should remember: 1. To make a conscious effort to use leg drive in scrimmage and tackling and blocking drills, particularly when he feels tired. Drive is one of the first things to go when fatigue sets in. 2. To keep the upper body relaxed when trying to use leg drive. Many athletes, particularly young ones, tighten up their whole body when trying to use drive. Stay loose. Maximum efficiency comes from relaxed drive.

Swimmers drink tea

With marathon swimming prominent in the news these days, you often read about swimmers drinking tea during their long grinds. Sports College observers at the Pan American Games in Mexico reported that many coaches and trainers fed their athletes strong, clear tea, often sweetened with honey, about 20 minutes before workouts and competition, and again following effort.

Tea has been popular with trainers for a long time. It's something that every athlete can use as a natural, harmless stimulant as part of his training procedure.

Dust, ragweed pollen cause skin disease

Inhaling such substances as house dust and ragweed pollen can cause skin disease as well as asthma in some children according to Dr. Louis Tuft, of Temple University School of Medicine, in a report printed in the current issue of Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada.

Dr. Tuft was reporting on "inhaled" allergens in the American Journal of Diseases of Children, published by the American Medical Association. He says that for many years allergic eczema, a form of skin disease, was treated like other "eczemas" and was blamed on allergy-producing foods such as milk, wheat and eggs. He said that food can cause this kind of skin disease, but that it often results from simple inhaling allergens, notably ragweed. Frequently, both skin disease and asthma are caused by the same substance.

Chief causes of the disease are house dust, plant pollens, wool, silken scales from animal hair or feathers, insecticides, and atmospheric molds (particularly in the Western or grain areas of the country). Children may get allergic eczema from rabbits, cats, horses and dogs. While some cases may be treated by desensitizing injections like those used in asthma, the usual treatment is to remove the cause.

Dr. Tuft noted that it is even possible children may be allergic to dander in the scalps of their parents—but this has never been proved. "Until it is," he said, "one must withhold judgment."

East Germany's barbers must collect hair they snip off customers' heads, package it and send it to the government-run raw material-excess commission. Anyone failing to comply will be snatched bald-headed.

"I managed to slip in quietly," says a Briton who crash-landed his glider on the field during a cricket match at Lasham, England. If he'd landed over here during a pro-football game, he'd have been kicked for an extra point at the half.

Officers in Marshalltown, Iowa, had a spoke put in their wheels of enforcement by one small boy who, caught breaking up his bicycle, said it was his and that he could do as he pleased with it. It was. He did. Cops pedaled off about his business.

ONE-MAN SKI RIG—To go bounding over the hilly moun on water skis it usually takes quite a crew. This new invention, demonstrated at Kiagenfurt, Austria, would simplify all that. The six-foot motor tug has a 10-foot steering and control mechanism. The model will do 25 miles per hour, and the inventor hopes to have the speed up to 50 miles per hour when he markets the gadget.

SILENT KILLER

Cool weather is just around the corner, when temperatures will tempt the motorist to start his car in a closed garage. No matter how cold the day, the garage doors should always be open before the car is started. Carbon monoxide (invisible, odorless and tasteless) in a closed space is sure death. It may also be found in the furnace room, if pipes or chimney are faulty. In the car itself, when standing still with the engine running, there is danger unless the windows are open sufficiently to create ventilation.

DON'T NEGLECT A SCRATCH

Even a small scratch may become dangerous if it is neglected and allowed to become infected. Any wound should receive treatment as soon as possible; cleaned of dirt and covered with a sterile dressing, it will have a chance to heal normally. Handy little ready-made sterile dressings can be used for minor cuts and burns and make a useful addition to the kitchen first aid kit. Every home, office, cottage, or car should be equipped with a first aid kit to meet the emergencies that so often happen in those places.

Spare the rod more homework

VICTORIA.—British Columbia school teachers have been instructed to spare the rod but not to spoil the child, reports the Canadian Press.

Education Minister Ray Williston has issued clarifying regulations which can mean more homework for many students and which limits "corporal punishment" to only when "imperatively necessary."

The punishment regulations—not new but clearer than before—put the teacher in the parent's shoes and have it to the teacher to decide when to strap the pupil's palms. B.C. teachers have welcomed new homework regulations which permit assignments for elementary school children for the first time.

Teachers have been given permission to give 30-minute home assignments to Grades 4, 5 and 6. For students in the first three grades, the after-school hours are still their own.

Students in Grades 7 to 9 will maintain their one hour of homework but students in Grades 10 to 12 get 30 minutes more for a total homework time of two hours.

Of Many Things

(by Ambrose Hills)
TWO MERCHANTS

The two merchants set up shop in a small Ontario town together. After a couple of years, they decided to split up. The town was growing and there was room for another General Store. Besides, they didn't always agree. Each one felt he could hold his own in competition, so they parted good friends, and they were soon in competition for trade.

Both did well. George was a heavy advertiser and was always coming up with special sales and attractions to bring shoppers to the town. Tom didn't advertise much. He used to say he'd let George spend the money to bring the folks to town. They all know where I am — been established long enough," he said. And he was a shrewd buyer and made a good profit on anything he did sell. But they both got too old for tending store, and last month when a fellow from Toronto arrived in town looking for a business to buy, they were each very anxious to sell to him.

Battle of The "Crows Nest"

A report was once sent to Ottawa that the Crow's Nest Pass on the Alberta-B.C. border, was so named for its peculiar shape. This happens to be contrary to the evidence of early missionaries, surveyors, settlers and Indians of that Rocky Mountain and foothill country.

In the years 1852-54, the Bloods, Peigans and Blackfoot were all flourishing together under one language, and were known as the great Blackfoot Nation. At this time their main camp was near the present city of Lethbridge.

This was about 15 years before the American freetraders came up from Montana and established their whiskey trading forts, to start the years of strife and bloodshed between the tribes and the whites. An era which lasted until the establishment of the North West Mounted Police at Fort Macleod in 1874.

But meanwhile across the line in the United States, a tribe of Indians known as the Crows, roamed. Unknown to the Blackfoot, this tribe had been shifting over the border time and again—stealing horses. When they were finally discovered, the Blackfoot massed for a surprise attack.

The Crows were encamped in the shelter of the lone limestone and shale mountain at the entrance of the Pass. The chiefs in this Blackfoot war-party were all well known for their bravery by the early pioneers. Big Swan and Running Wolf of the Peigans were known for their ability and cunning to strike fast. And there was Cross Chief a great warrior of the tribe. Their deeds are still the talk of the old Indians in the southwestern foothills.

In that terrific and recusive battle the Crows were completely annihilated, and the Blackfoot with few casualties returned to camp victorious. Since that day the ambush in which the Crows were hiding has been known as the "Crows Nest".

Bones and arrowheads could be found for years afterwards, but around the turn of the century, souvenir hunters left it too late. Tragedy always seems to have struck swiftly, ruthlessly in this mountain pass. There was a sudden and slight earthquake in 1901. Then early one morning in 1903, 50 years after the Indian battle, the whole side of the mountain roared out and down the valley. Seventy million tons spread over

Officially a Ghost Town

Thirty-five years ago somebody in the little coal mining town of Nordegg, Alta., about 60 miles west of Red Deer, started a society called the Nordegg Literary and Athletic Society which mushroomed after that into being the town's central entertainment.

With some 500 members, the society built up a $5,000 library. They kept a thriving ball club going and even sent a hockey team down to Calgary's Stampede Corral once for an exhibition game which was fun even if they didn't win.

Recently a serious young man bent over a bandaged child in Alberta Red Cross Crippled Children's Hospital and gave a cheque for $1500 to Col. D. H. Tomlinson, Alberta Red Cross Commissioner.

Now a Ghost Town

As he did the little town of Nordegg became officially a ghost town. The $1500 were the last assets of the Nordegg Literary and Athletic Society, being handed over to Red Cross in a lump sum by Tony Mele, formerly of Nordegg and still acting society president.

The memories and traditions of 35 years were in Mr. Mele's eyes as he explained the society's gesture.

"While everybody was moving away, we talked about what we should do with the money," he said. "Everybody agreed that nobody would get much if we split the $1,500 among 12 members — all we had the last few months. "We wanted the Red Cross to have the money," he said.

A short time ago the society gave its $5,000 library to another small town. The Nordegg Literary and Athletic Society finished operations as such about one month ago.

"We have rarely received a donation we appreciated as much as this one," said a Red Cross official who watched the few people from Nordegg walk down the hill from the hospital to their new homes. Nordegg's mines closed this year for lack of markets.

LIVING IN A "FOOL'S PARADISE"

Which are cleverer in deceit? The male or the female? Indications are that when it comes to fooling the opposite sex, the female of the species is far more deadlier than the male. Consider the case of a beauty named Fatima Hassan, who lived in Cairo, Egypt. She was married to six men at the same time, who each thought he was her only husband. However, after a long period, Fatima made one false step. So she was arrested for bigamy. "It was fun," she said, and added she had no regrets as to her life with six husbands.

Engineers bucking against time installing microwave system

Telephone engineers are racing time and weather across mountainous B.C. to path test the route of the westernmost section of the world's longest microwave system before winter sets in.

Comparable in significance to Canada's first transcontinental railway or telephone line, the microwave chain will provide television channels and additional long distance telephone circuits over a 3,800-mile route from Vancouver to Sydney, N.S.

Leapfrogging from mountain to mountain, telephone forces in B.C. are blazing a trail for the construction of approximately 12 relay stations, including steel towers and antennas, between Vancouver and the Alberta border.

Engineers have completed path testing between the Crownsnest Pass and Morrissey Ridge, near Fernie; between the Fernie site and Moyie, and between Moyie and Thompson Mountain, near Creston, and are proceeding west.

In selecting sites for the relay stations, telephone crews are hacking their way through the most rugged portion of the entire transcontinental microwave route. They are bulldozing access "roads" up difficult mountain sides to altitudes as high as 7,500 feet to obtain clear, line-of-sight shots between relay stations.

By the time the $5,000,000 B.C. section is completed in 1958, many British Columbians will have become familiar with the relay towers and their antennas — symbols of one of the greatest communications achievements in Canada.

Known as TD-2, the microwave system will permit the "stacking" of 120 telephone circuits above the television signal.

The TD-2 system will carry telephone conversations and television from coast to coast with the speed of light by means of 137 relay stations spaced an average of 28 miles apart. Including spurs, the system eventually will be 4,300 miles long, linking most major centres across the country by means of 155 stations.

Preliminary surveys in B.C. were made by air, and tests to establish basic line-of-sight paths were made by the use of mirror-reflected light from point to point before actual radio path testing began. The latter operation is being carried out with three portable steel towers which come in sections and can be raised to a height of 200 feet. The tower sections and other equipment are transported by four-wheel-drive vehicles or on foot where roads have not yet been put all the way to the sites. Most B.C. relay sites are above the 4,500-foot level.

During the light testing operations a helicopter was used on the leg between Sumas Mountain, near Abbotsford, and Dog Mountain, near Hope. A man was dropped by helicopter on Dog Mountain which is inaccessible except on foot, to act as a relay station there, while the helicopter made several runs over Sumas Mountain. Light mirrors were used in both cases to determine the line-of-sight conditions between.

The cross-country microwave skyway is a co-operative undertaking of the seven major telephone systems in Canada, which make up the Trans-Canada Telephone System. Each system is building the facilities for the chain in the territory it serves and connecting them with those of other systems.

As walnuts and prunes were passed, cigars were lit and the Mayor proposed the toast to the King. He expressed satisfaction with His Majesty's reign. Indeed he spoke quite highly of the King, regarding him as as good a man as they could get for the money. He did not think the time was ripe for the British Empire to be ruled by a Commission. It had been tried in Calgary and was a failure. He was agreeable to the King continuing on the throne to the end of his term. 'Loud cheers'

The Mayor Speaks

Mayor Emerson in proposing the toast to Our Honored Guest, said: "As you know, our guest of honor has been for some time most hospitably entertained by His Majesty at His Edmonton shooting box, where he had the honor of meeting our popular fellow townsman, Mr. Callahan who is sought after everywhere; also young Mr. Wilson, the Macleod chicken fancier. This district is splendidly adapted for gentlemen of Mr. McGonigle's pursuits, and owing to the persistent reduction of the police force, he can conduct his business without molestation. I proposed a toast to the future success of Mr. McGonigle."

Mr. McGonigle's rising was the signal for vociferous applause, which lasted fully ten minutes. The guest of the evening, visibly affected, said that owing to the many kindnesses shown him he felt too full to express himself. He was willing to let the dead past bury its dead. The horse in question had died shortly after he was parted from it. Had it not been for the ignorance of his lawyer he might have been acquitted because the horse he stole was not a horse but a mare.

The speaker paid a high tribute to his Edmonton host, though he lamented that in spite of the bars there was nothing of an enlivening nature to drink. Mr. Callahan said, had been a companionable member of the pleasant little house party. His suite of rooms when vacated, are being held in readiness for Philip Wagner, the distinguished Galician financier. Mr. McGonigle in closing referred to the gross partiality of the trial judge who ignored the proposal to return the horses and let bygones be bygones. He asked that a silent toast be drunk to the memory of the dead horse.

Mr. Matt Macaleay of Edmonton, formerly host of Mr. McGonigle, obliged the company with "Abide with me," which he sang with deep feeling, although his rich staccato voice could be improved with sand papering.

SONGWRITERS MUST BE SLIPPING

Mary is still a grand old name, but it does not top the popularity list of feminine names any more. It now takes second place to Linda. There have been innumerable songs about girls named Mary, but there has yet to be one written about a girl named Linda.

SERVICE OF LOVE

Robert Louis Stevenson had a remarkable power of attracting people to himself by the very magnetism of his personality, as well as the kindness of his behavior. One day, when the cook was away, Stevenson told another servant, Sosimo, just to bring him a little bread and cheese for lunch to his writing-room. But to his surprise he was served with an excellent meal—an omelet, a good salad, and perfect coffee.

"Who cooked this?" asked Stevenson.

"I did," said Sosimo.

"Well, then, great is your wisdom."

Sosimo bowed and humbly corrected him saying: "Great is my love!"

INCONVENIENCE INSPIRES INVENTION

The automatic telephone, from which the currently used dial telephone was developed, was invented by an undertaker. The dial phone inventor, Almon B. Strowger of Kansas City, Mo., found waiting for operators to get him phone numbers unbearable. So he figured out what is called the Strowger switch that made automatic telephoning possible. That was in Kansas City, Mo., in the 1890's. The first general automatic telephone system was installed in the city of Laporte, Ind., in 1895.

... AND THEY LIVED HAPPILY EVER AFTER

It is constantly maintained that it is very difficult for a widow with three or more children to interest a man in matrimony. If you know a widow or divorcee left with three or more children to support and seeking another husband, tell her not to be too discouraged. In England a 21-year-old bachelor married a 47-year-old widow, the mother of 22 children! That was four years ago and this unusual matrimonial union is still a happy one.

"He's had his head in the clouds since he started buying his Canada Savings Bonds."

Joseph Seagram, M.P., wired: Dear Mr. Mayor: Though unable to be with you in the flesh, my spirit is with you no doubt in sufficient quantity wishing Mr. McGonigle all luck in his next venture. Yours truly, Joseph Seagram."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The pink-eyed rabbit

—By HANK McCALL

MONDAY morning the boss walked into my office. "McMann, Bellon Manufacturing Co. is going to change their advertising agent. I want you to go get that account."

Ordinarily I would have jumped at the chance, but five minutes before the boss, the same one, had assigned me a new secretary. The idea of breaking her in while working on a big account strangled me.

It took me three months to get Miss Kincadee to the point where she could handle all my paper work unsatisfied. That left all my time for socializing with the clients. Just when I needed her the most he takes her away and hands me this new gal.

And what a gal, she was straight from the country. She had never been in a business office in her life, let alone this madhouse of ours. Her name was Virginia Cooke and she was nice looking, but I wasn't interested in looks.

I called in the idea boys for a session and with many doubts had Miss Cooke come in to record their bright remarks. It must have been because it was Monday morning but no one had any brainstorms to offer Bellon.

The morning rolled by and at 11 o'clock I called a halt. Miss Cooke waited with her notebook in hand for further instructions. "Work up your notes on the typewriter. I'm going over to Bellon's now but I'll be back right after lunch. That'll give you plenty of time to have them ready for me."

My lunch with Jim Murphy, the Bellon sales manager, wasn't exactly inspiring. Usually Jim is an easy guy to get along with, but today he had advertisements of the brain. Some of his higher brass must have been raising the pressure on him. The agency that could do all he wanted would eliminate the need for his sales force. He wanted Bellon Overalls so well known that his peddlers could sit on their families and do a boom business by shaking the orders out of envelopes.

That little luncheon made my head hang so low that I didn't see the crowd in front of our building until I bumped into the fringe. I tapped a guy on the shoulder and asked, "What's going on?"

"Some dame has a couple of rabbits."

Fresh guy. I pushed through the mob to see for myself. Miss Cooke was the attraction. She was strolling slowly down the street with two white rabbits on a leash. One had pink eyes and the other had blue. She was dangling a carrot from the end of a riding crop over the noses of the poor beasts.

Each rabbit was straining at the leash trying to get its teeth into that carrot. If I hadn't been so worried about the Bellon account I would have laughed but instead I snorted and went up to the office.

The conference transcript lay on top of my desk and it was beautifully finished. If there had been any ideas on it I would have been happy.

My mind wasn't on Bellon, it straggled back to that crazy girl and the rabbits. What a way to spend a lunch hour, walking two white rabbits down the main street with a carrot over their noses.

Miss Cooke came in from her lunch hour on the dot. She certainly didn't look like a girl that walked rabbits.

"Miss Cooke, do you like rabbits?"

"Yes, sir, friend."

Well, if she didn't want to tell me about her rabbits that was her affair. I had other things on my mind. But every time my mind focused on business, two big rabbits, one with pink eyes and the other with blue, slid between my thoughts and my papers. Sometimes they even winked. Miss Cooke's typewriter beat like rain on a tin roof all afternoon.

She was strictly business. It soon became apparent to me that Miss Kincadee wasn't going, to be missed.

I left the office early the next morning after showing Miss Cooke the days work. At noon I was driving back to the parking lot and I was in a hurry. A block from my destination I hit a traffic jam. Cars were stalled on both sides of the street. A couple of cops flashed by blowing their whistles.

Luckily for me I spotted one of our office boys, hailed him and had him take my car. I jumped out and headed for the center of the crowd.

Well, you guessed it. Miss Cooke was stranded half way across the main corner of town. The pink-eyed rabbit had snatched the carrot off the leash and blue eyes had gone on strike. Every time the cops tried to move them the hooting bystanders surged forward, packing the street.

That was enough for me, I took off for the office. Miss Cooke might be potentially the greatest secretary in the world but I wasn't going to have one that walked white rabbits during lunch hour. The boss had the same idea. He was waiting on my desk. "Look here, McCann. What about this girl of yours? What's she doing with those rabbits?"

"Boss, I don't know. She says she likes rabbits fried."

The boss started to explode but checked. In walked Miss Cooke with Jim Murphy beaming at her side.

"McCann," he said, "anybody with the brains to hire a girl as smart as mine must be pretty sharp himself. Bring out the contracts, I want to sign up a little advertising."

The boss looked at me and I looked at him. This business is supposed to be crazy but we had never seen anything like this.

Miss Cooke never said a word, she didn't even come into my office. I could hear her typewriter pounding as we haggled over the final details.

After all the excitement cleared and my visitors left, I called in my wondrous girl.

"Miss Cooke, I don't want to intrude on your private life, but what's the story on this rabbit deal?"

"I guess it's home work. You see, my uncle runs the pet shop across the street and his business is very bad. Since he needed a boost, I thought the rabbits would be real advertising."

She's teaching me and I've only been in the business 12 years.

CHANGE OF PACE—George H. Clark, 91, takes grandson Bobby for a ride behind Sally Ann. Clark's solution to the question, "What will replace the auto?" Denied a renewal of his driver's license because of his age, the North Belle Vernon, Pa., oldster, who has 47 years of driving without a serious accident behind him, purchased the pony and buggy so that he can visit his wife's grave each day.

Extreme heat affecting quality and yield of Manitoba crops

Harvesting of cereal crops, is nearing completion under almost ideal conditions in both southern and northern areas of Manitoba, it is reported in the final crop report of the season issued by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture.

Quality and yield of crop, which earlier promised to be much above average, were adversely affected by extreme heat of the two mid-summer months and a nearly general lack of rain.

While returns have shown great variation, it is pointed out, wheat and oats have yielded somewhat above the long-term average. In the east and south, very little wheat has graded above 3-North, but in central-northern sections the average has been 2 and 3-North.

Except for a limited acreage of early planted crop, barley yields are disappointing, it is reported, with at least a half-million acres of late barley abandoned. Flax promises to yield average to a little better at some points.

First estimate on average yield of bushels per acre released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics are: Wheat, 21; Oats, 35.7; Barley, 10.

"Yeah, but how does Murphy come in?"

"Well, our business needed advertising, too. So when anyone asked me about the rabbits I told them we were doing the job for the pet shop. Then today when that awful pink-eyed one grabbed the carrot and the police were arresting me, the nicest man told them he'd handle everything. When he insisted on bringing me back to the office, I said, 'No,' but he said it would be all right, he was Mr. Murphy."

Just like that she gets Murphy to sign the contract. Well, the least I could do was to show some appreciation.

"Miss Cooke, this contract means a lot to me. In fact it calls for a celebration. Do you think we could arrange to have dinner to-night?"

"I'm sorry, Mr. McMann, but Mr. Murphy has asked me. We're going to have fried rabbit."

"I'm going to have rabbit, too, two of them, stuffed, with carrots in their mouths."

Intensive study continues on control of wild oats

Research and experimentation on control of Western Canada's most widespread and serious weed, wild oats, will be stepped up in Manitoba during the next 12 months, it is announced by H. E. Wood, chairman of the Manitoba Weeds Commission.

Control of the weed, particularly by chemicals, has been studied intensively during the past two years. Results of the study are now being analyzed and will be presented at the Western Canadian Weed Control Conference when it is held in Regina, Saskatchewan, November 29 and 30.

One year ago a co-operative experimental project was planned by officials of the University of Manitoba, the Federal and Provincial governments, and representatives of chemical and grain handling organizations.

The project was carried to eight representative Manitoba farms where wild oats were a major problem. Trials were also carried on by the University of Manitoba and at the Dominion Experimental Farms at Brandon, Morden and Melita.

Six different chemicals were under test on these plots with three of the chemicals—IPC, TCA and 3,4-D—showing considerable promise. Several new chemicals introduced early this year also show indications of being effective against wild oats.

The year's experimentation was reviewed at a meeting of all co-operating agencies held September 11 in Winnipeg. The meeting was called by the Manitoba Weeds Commission with the chairman, Mr. Wood, presiding and H. A. Craig, Manitoba Department of Agriculture, acting as secretary.

Plans for the coming year call for the selection of eight farms on which 12 or more chemicals will be applied to the land between early October and freeze-up. At four locations, as an alternative.

DROWNING IN THE CRIB

A baby's crib seems an unlikely place in which an infant could drown but it is possible if the child is left to take his meal from a feeding bottle propped up against his face. The liquid may fill his mouth and lungs and so cause the child's death. It is believed for the baby to be held during his meal but he should never be left alone even for a minute while he has his bottle.

Advertising...

Modern advertising is a necessity to hold and build business. Be proud of your business, of the goods you have to sell, of the services you have to offer in your particular line. Show the progressive spirit and the desire to serve by advertising. Do not hide your light under a bushel — proclaim far and wide who you are and what you have to sell and where your place of business is, for public memory is short, and advertising is a powerful aid to all types of businesses. Moreover, people as a general rule shop where they are invited.
